Heather enjoys working with small business owners, individuals and property owners to proactively address client goals. She frequently works with clients in adverse situations to find effective solutions that minimize risk, manage expectations, and increase control and certainty in moving forward. Heather prides herself on being accessible to clients and maintaining a dedicated focus on client communication and satisfaction.

As a former deputy prosecuting attorney, Heather is comfortable in a courtroom and understands the compassion and clear guidance needed in a litigation setting. Heather is active in BGW&P's litigation practice and routinely works with clients on disputes related to business matters, real property and employment.
